

Tom Gillespie

He is the President of ACCESS Receivables Management and a co-inventor of AMMINA Virtual Agent™. The patent pending process is entitled "Methods and Systems for Account Management and Virtual Agent Design and Implementation".

Tom has been involved in the collection industry for 29 years and has built two companies from startup. (NMC and ACCESS). Prior to that time he was a Regional Vice-President of Sales and Marketing for Financial Collection Agencies (FCA).

He is a former regional winner of The Ernst and Young Entrepreneur of the Year Award. Under Tom's direction, NCMC was in the forefront of the "checks by phone" business as it introduced the first patented service bureau for checks by phone in 1990 (APSCHECKS). Tom resides in Phoenix Maryland and has three adult children. His wife Debbie is the CEO of ACCESS and has also been involved in the debt collection industry since 1990.

President
ACCESS RECEIVABLES